Subnautic is the creation of two San Francisco based jazz musicians, pianist/keyboardist Jacob Elijah Aginsky and drummer Eric Garland.

This project is best described as "Acoustic Trip-Hop", with live drum&bass, downtempo-jungle and acid-jazz thrown in for good measure.

After being nominated by the SF Weekly for a WAMMIE for BEST NEW JAZZ GROUP in 10/00, keyboardist Jacob Elijah Aginsky said in an interview "... that's what's so exciting about Subnautic is that it's the music of the day while retaining the integrity and spirit of creative improvisation. We play to a packed house at Bruno's and it's like a concert, and then we pack up and go play the same music at the chill-out room of a rave and everyone's dancing.." Drummer Eric Garland agreed. "What we're trying to do is create a defined musical space", he says. "It doesn't matter whether we're classified under acoustic trip-hop or live downtempo .. if people come away from our shows with a sense of having travelled somewhere, then that's all we need." (SFWv1, 10/00)

Subnautic has played extensively throughout the San Francisco Bay Area, and boasts a large and devoted following.
